Re: Quarterly Report

In the Third Quarter of 2006 ABC 24 WPTY showed support for charities in Memphis with over $30,000 in air time. July - September we ran a series of promotional spots and community service vignettes focusing on children and youth, health care and service to the armed forces. In addition to the above mentioned community service efforts we participated or sponsored the following community events.

- A Waiting Child – a series of news features focusing on the need for adoption and expelling the myths surrounding the adoption process.
- The Child Care Report – a weekly feature that provides information on the child care rating system, and gives parents the knowledge to make informed decisions surround child care. Efforts include on-going thirty second on –air vignettes.
- American Association Heart Walk – Raised over $100,000 in support of heart and Stroke.
- Diversity Memphis Walk – Sponsorship support lead to raising over $100,000 to continue the support of diversity.
- We provided $40,000 in on air promotion for Gotta Keep Movin and the participating charities.

We take our responsibility to keep our community informed of the issues of local importance and local service organizations and their caring activities very seriously. We pledge to continue to use our vital airtime to promote important, life-saving information on health care, safety, drugs and any critical issues that affect our viewing community.

Sincerely,

DREAMHEALER

Can a 19-year-old from Canada heal people of incurable conditions such as cancer and multiple sclerosis? Thousands of people pay money and travel long distances to find out -- attending mass healings where Adam says he can help people in ways no one else can. While some critics question whether he is taking advantage of the desperate and the sick, there are some astounding stories of tumors disappearing and cancers mysteriously going into remission. John Quiñones investigates the phenomenon.

Thursday, July 20, 2006

LOVE & REVENGE

'Til Death Do Us Part - How far will spouses go when a marriage goes bad? The things people attempt these days bring new meaning to the marital vow, 'til death do us part. "Primetime" looks at love, marriage, and revenge. Jake Tapper reports on the extreme measures people take when a bitter divorce turns into personal rage.

Thursday, July 27, 2006

ANDREA YATES

The crimes Andrea Yates committed against her five children trigger raw emotion and seem almost impossible to fathom. She confessed to drowning her children and, for five years and two trials, prosecutors and defense attorneys have dissected Yates' state of mind. "Primetime's" Chris Cuomo reports on a side of Yates that viewers have never seen before.

DECEPTION

Primetime updates a recent report about an American man who lived a life of deception for more than 20 years in England, where his wife, children and friends knew him as Lord Christopher Buckingham. Martin Bashir sits down for an exclusive interview with Buckingham, as he explains what he says is the truth.

Thursday, August 3, 2006

LOST CHILDREN

More than 100,000 troubled teens are locked up in juvenile correction facilities. Chris Cuomo goes inside two juvenile facilities near Phoenix, AZ, and meets a group of kids at a critical turning point – they have one last shot to either change their ways or face the prospect of doing time in an adult prison.

Thursday, August 10, 2006

SILENT KILLER

OUT OF CONTROL: AIDS IN BLACK AMERICA is the first national network television news documentary on the AIDS epidemic among African Americans--- an epidemic that is spreading fast, but that has attracted little consistent attention from leaders in public health, politics, or religion. Terry Moran reports on the crisis in this special edition of "Primetime."

Thursday, August 31, 2006

TRAIN WRECKS

Are trains across the country ticking time bombs? In January, 2005, when a train crashed into a small town in South Carolina, it unleashed 160,000 pounds of a deadly compound that killed nine people, injured more than 500 others, and forever changed the town. What happened in Graniteville, SC was not an act of terrorism; it was a devastating example of what can go wrong from the millions of tank loads transporting poisonous chemicals yearly. Chris Cuomo reports on the risk of toxic train accidents in America.

TO HELL AND BACK

A Russian orphan adopted by an American man speaks out for the first time about being molested by her adoptive father – who posted explicit photographs of the little girl online. The report chronicles the girls' adoption from an orphanage in a small industrial city in the south of Russia to her new home in the outskirts of Pittsburgh, PA, and questions whether anything could have prevented the vicious child abuse.

Thursday, September 14, 2006

NEW HEIGHTS

Everyone knows that adolescence is tough, but with the advance of technology, teenagers today - especially girls - are redefining what's fair in love and war on the social battlefield. Diane Sawyer reports on how cell phones, digital cameras and personal websites combine in new ways that seems to encourage and amplify the meanness of teenage behavior.

Friday, August 18, 2006

UNSOLVED MURDERS

Did a photographer, already on death row for the murders of two young aspiring models, kill more women? Twenty-two years after the murders of Shari Miller and Tracey Campbell, the chilling poster of 47 pictures from William Richard Bradford's collection found in a shoebox during his arrest is being used as a tool to find possible victims. Jim Avila reports.

LEFT BEHIND

20/20 journeys to Namibia, Africa, where tens of millions of people have been wiped out by the modern day plague of AIDS. Deborah Roberts' reporting focuses on the children left behind, some as orphans heading up households struggling to raise themselves and their younger siblings the best they can with virtually no food or money.

NEEDED HEART

In April, 20/20 first reported on the emotional story of twin baby boys in need of heart transplants to survive. The newsmagazine was there as baby Nicolas Draper received the rare infant organ transplant, but brother Nathaniel still was waiting for the gift of life. Elizabeth Vargas updates the report this week with a miraculous turn of events.

Friday, September 1, 2006

STUPID IN AMERICA

Hundreds of teachers protested outside ABC in New York after the airing of John Stossel's special, "Stupid in America," earlier this year. They demanded he "teach for a week" so his cameras would reveal how difficult it is to teach. Stossel thought it would be a good idea. But did they let him? "20/20" updates "Stupid in America: How We Are Cheating Our Kids"

Friday, September 8, 2006 Season Premiere

LIONEL AND NICOLE RICHIE

Lionel Richie was one of the most popular recording artists of the 1980s and today, his daughter, Nicole Richie, is a celebrity in her own right. Both speak candidly about how they patched their relationship. Lionel also gives "20/20" an exclusive tour of his $20 million plus Los Angeles mansion.

Friday, September 15, 2006

STEREOTYPES

As John Stossel reports, many people say it's natural to stereotype, and psychologists say we still categorize by things like age and race and gender because our brains are wired to do it automatically. "20/20" reports on the power of stereotypes and the psychology behind them.

Friday, September 22, 2006

METHADONE

The pain killer Methadone has become one of the deadliest prescription drugs in many states creating what some medical examiners across the country say is a death epidemic. As Jim Avila reports, Methadone in pill form prescribed for chronic pain is cheaper than most pain medications, and just one pill can sometimes be fatal.

RACHAEL RAY

Deborah Roberts profiles one of TV's hottest talk show hosts -- Rachael Ray. Ray speaks candidly about how she became one of the most successful cooking gurus in the country without ever taking a cooking class.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

John Stossel reports on names and stereotypes and asks whether someone's name can prevent them from getting a job.

Friday, September 29, 2006

GENDER GAP

How different are female and male brains? "20/20" correspondents report on the female brain, the gender gap and the brainwork behind sex, as well as question some common myths between the sexes. The eye-opening reports air on 20/20.
